Cedar Point casino reps cancel July 21 meeting

BY DAVID A. FARRELL
A Wednesday meeting between Bay St. Louis councilmen and representatives of developers who are planning to construct a casino development in the Cedar Point area along North Beach Boulevard was cancelled Thursday, according to a city spokesman.

Casino representatives told city officials they need more time, about 60 days, to prepare for the meeting, which would give the council and residents an overview of what developers plan.

And while casino developers move forward with their plans, residents along North Beach Boulevard are gearing up for what they believe will be a tough fight to protect from commercial development their quiet neighborhood along the Bay.

Said Peggy Dutton, chairman of the Friends of Bay St. Louis, "It doesn't matter that this is a casino. It could be a shopping mall, or any other type of commercial development. We have small children out here, the elderly, and the key point is: You just don't do that to people. And if it can happen here, it can happen to anyone else."

She said the water along North Beach Boulevard is unzoned, leaving residents wide-open to casino development.

Representatives of Minnesota-based Gaming Corporation of America-Bay St. Louis, Inc., paid a surprise visit to a city council work session on Monday after a legal notice of their intention to apply for a gaming license was published in a Biloxi-based newspaper.

P&H doubles sewerage rates for Port Bienville, Stennis

BY LIZ HAAS
The Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission will double sewerage rates for Port Bienville Industrial Park and Stennis International Airport.

The rates, going from a minimum of $17.50 to $35, would be raised to equal that of present water charges. The increase goes into effect next fiscal year, starting October 1, 1993.

Commissioner Joe McCullough, chairman of the utilities committee that recommended the increase, said, "We're trying to bring in enough income for the upkeep of the present system."

Commission engineer Carlos Cordon said there are new restrictions from the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) on sewerage systems, a new plant, a new chlorination system and more testing being done to comply with regulations.

"We have formulated a way to cover the expenses and to create funds for repairs and replacements as needed," said Cordon.

Cordon said every utility should create a fund for future expenditures.

Supervisors OK revetment plans

BY DAVID A. FARRELL
Hancock supervisors on Thursday put their stamp of approval on a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers project that will see three revetments constructed along the Bay St. Louis seawall to prevent erosion in the most deteriorated sections.

The action came after a Wednesday meeting at the courthouse between supervisors and Johnny L. Grandison, a Corps community planner-study manager of the Mobile District.

Grandison discussed costs and benefits of the proposed revetments and said that, if all goes smoothly, work on the project should begin about December and be completed by May.

He said that after the revetments are constructed, they would be turned over to the county for maintenance.

Camp Rainbow

Pediatric cancer patients invited to free ACS summer camp

BY JANET MCQUEEN
When Carrie Roche packed her bags for camp five summers ago, her parents, Gary and Janet Roche, bid an uneasy goodbye.

The blue-eyed first grader, stricken with leukemia, was no ordinary camper. But, this was no ordinary camp.

Camp Rainbow, tucked away on the Strong River in Pinola, Miss., is offered free to pediatric cancer patients up to age 18. They may be undergoing treatment or in remission—the only requisites are a cancer diagnosis and referral from a physician.

The camp is funded by The American Cancer Society, Mississippi Division.

This marks Camp Rainbow's tenth year of providing camp activities for children, including many who never had the opportunity to enjoy the traditional fun of summer recreation. Most camps do not accept pediatric cancer patients for fear of not being prepared to meet their special needs.

Thirty-eight campers

attended this first camp, along with a contingent of volunteers, including medical staff, who saw that there was no disruption of chemotherapy or other treatment necessary for the campers.

The American Cancer Society's objective is to provide a fulfilling four-day camping experience in a loving and caring environment which affords each camper the opportunity to share the good times and camaraderie of camp life with fellow campers.

Camp Rainbow also allows the family a well-deserved rest knowing that their children are in the capable and trusted hands of qualified pediatric doctors and nurses as well as trained camp counselors.

Carrie's favorite activity is horseback riding. Other activities include clowns, hot air balloon rides, swimming, tennis, arts and crafts, fishing, canoeing and more.

As this year marks the 10th anniversary, many special

Reflections

On Life

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

Your first invitation ever came through the courtesy of your parents. It was the irreplaceable invitation to life extended gratis: to be conceived, to be carried lovingly in the womb, and to be born into the world.

That same invitation ushered you into your family and your home setting together with your siblings, opening the door to every other invitation you would ever receive in life.

At many times in your life, you have been on pins and needles, wanting to be included, longing to be with the in-crowd through personal and direct invitation. You even tied your personal worth in with being not rejected by invited.

The value and fulfillment of being invited into the inner circle of the in-crowd and of being invited into cool or privileged groups is, at best, ques-tional in most cases and, at worst, often snobbish, degrading and destructive.

However, there is one invitation which does not turn most people on, but which is the most important invitation ever extended to you in the course of your lifetime, it reads:

"You too go into my vineyard, and I will give you what is just" (Mt. 20: 4).

And again: "Go out quickly into the streets the alleys of the town and bring in here the poor and the crippled, the blind and the lame" (Lk. 14: 21).

That same invitation varies from time to time, but Jesus always has the same insistence:

"Come to me, all you who are weary and find life burdensome, and I will refresh you. Take my yoke upon your shoulders and learn from me, for I am gentle and humble of heart. Your souls will find rest, for my yoke is easy and my burden light" (Mt. 11: 28-30).

As soothing as that invitation is, just as tough is the other invitation of Jesus calling us to embrace the cross:

"Whoever does not carry his own cross and come after me cannot be my disciple" (Lk. 14: 27).

If inclusion in a number of human groups is so important to you, why don't you get more excited about your special, personal invitation to be part of the kingdom of God? Why don't you seek membership and fellowship just as avidly?

Is the root of your hesitation and disinterest the stumbling block, the foolishness, the disgrace of the cross?

That invitation is being extended to you now, just as it has often been repeated through God's various messengers. But look out! Today's invitation may be your last.

If not today, sometime soon enough God's invitation to you will be the final one. The urgency of your acceptance lies in this that you don't know when the last invitation will be extended to you — right now, or some days or years hence.

You can afford to turn down some or all the secular invitations which you receive from time to time. You will be the worse for the omission, and you may be better off.

God's invitation to the reign of God is quite another matter. Ignore this invitation and you will miss out on the only important things in life and after this life.

Hear the urgency in the appeal of Jesus to the Samaritan woman: "If you knew the gift of God . . . , you would have asked him and he would have given you living water" (Jn. 4: 10).

At least two councilmen, James Thriffiley III and Tad Black, said they had no idea the representatives were coming. The council then told developers they would set up a Wednesday meeting, but developers backed out Thursday, wanting more time for preparation.

Dutton said residents opposing commercial development expect the issue might wind up in court. "As a group we are not in favor of any commercial development in residential areas. We will do whatever we can to convince public officials of this," she said.

She added, "It might raise legal questions that will have to be determined in court. We are looking at it closely. It is a major concern."

Thriffiley said developers told him a hotel is planned, along with a 75-by-300-ft. dock-side gambling vessel with about 30,000 sq. ft. of gambling space.

Thriffiley said attorney Eric Ahlgren, who represents the developers, said the company had purchased about 23 acres at the proposed site.

Thriffiley said developers would expand Engman and Blue Meadow to use as a major access route to keep traffic off North Beach Boulevard, if the development is successful. In addition, he said installation of a water well and fire station paid for by developers, would be required.

"The whole thrust of any agreement with developers would be to keep traffic off North Beach Boulevard," said Thriffiley.

Ahlgren said the company represents plans to follow a pre-annexation agreement, negotiated between the city and another developer, Richard F. Kinst of Gulfport, who planned earlier to develop the site. However, Kinst later dropped the project.

Dutton said she was not sure just what is included in the agreement and added she plans to get a copy of it for review by her group.

The legal notice published in the newspaper said the company that will develop the proposed site is solely owned by Sheldon T. Fleck, 1400 International Centre I, 900 Second Avenue South, Minneapolis, Minn. 55402.

The notice gave the property description as Lot 1, Rear First Ward, Bay St. Louis, Mississippi.

"A public utility should not make money, but it should not lose money either."

"After one year's time we can look at the figures and readjust them accordingly," said Cordon.

The utilities committee also discussed the possibility of charging connection fees for new customers.

McCullough said, "We should charge a time and materials hook up fee for new customers for installation and a minimum hook up fee if the customer installs his own."

"There was a water use ordinance that was proposed two years ago. We need to check to see if it was adopted so we can update it and/or modify it, if not then we need to establish something," said Cordon.

RAILROAD CONTRACT

Commissioner Louis Brown, chairman of the railroad committee, reviewed the contract with GE Plastics for rail services.

"We've been meeting with GE over the past several months to renew this contact and have made some changes in it," said Brown.

Brown said some changes include requesting GE to go from 800 to 900 cars and for the commission to perform some Saturday services for them.

"This will help them cut down transit time by three days which will make them more competitive," he said.

The commission authorized the proper officers to execute the rail services contract with GE.

The commission approved a resolution authorizing the proper officers execute an agreement with Pearl River Community College for a Crash, Fire & Rescue training program that began in March and will be a continuation of the present contract.

SECURITY FENCING

Cordon addressed the board on bids received on the security fencing at Stennis International Airport.

"We estimated $82,400 in our application to the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), funding agency for the project. Of six bids, the lowest bid from Sullivan Enterprises, Inc. of Magee, Miss., for $67,985 would be what we recommend you accept," said Cordon.

The commission accepted to award the fencing contract to Sullivan Enterprises, Inc. subject to final review and approval by the FAA.

The commission approved opening bids for guide and signs work for Stennis International Airport.

The commission approved advertising for bids for the installation of a new chlorination system at Stennis International Airport, to be opened August 20.

Commission executive director Buz Olsen announced to the commission the budget planning process will begin the first week in August.

The commission approved the claims for the general operating docket, railroad operating docket, industrial park revenue docket, railroad car wash docket, FAA high priority docket, t-hanger facility docket and Stennis Airport revenue docket.

Bay man's brother missing

BY LIZ HAAS

Family, friends and police continue a search for Ola Ladner, 63, of Gulfport, who has been missing since Wednesday evening.

His family reports that he never returned to his Gulfport home after attending a wake at Edmond Fahey Funeral Home in Bay St. Louis.

"He left his house in Gulfport around 7:30 p.m. after watching Wheel of Fortune with his daughter, Terry, and met some of the relatives over at Edmond Fahey Funeral Home for a wake," said his brother, Clarence Ladner of Bay St. Louis.

Ladner said his brother left the funeral home alone between 9 and 9:30 p.m., saying he was heading home.

"As far as we know, that's where he was headed, and that was the last any of us saw of him," said Ladner.

Ola's wife called Clarence Thursday morning concerned about him.

"I got his tag number and another brother went on a search for his car," said Ladner.

He said, "He found the car parked near Annie's Restaurant at Henderson Point in Pass Christian and notified the Harrison County Sheriff's Office."

"The Sheriff's Office searched the car and found his lower dentures and glasses," said Ladner.

Ladner said, "We felt something had happened to him when we saw his belongings."

"We were thinking that maybe he was wasting some time getting a cup of coffee somewhere until his wife got off work at 11 p.m.," said Ladner.

He said, "We don't know what else to do. We're confused and don't know where to turn. We're all worried and anxiously awaiting to get some news to his whereabouts because we are such a close-knit family."

Ola Ladner, born in 1931, is retired from the Veterans Administration in Gulfport. His wife, Florence, is a nurse at Memorial Hospital. They have two daughters, Karen and Terry Ladner.

Ladner is number 12 of 15 children, including nine boys and six girls. His parents are the late Ola and Azelia Ladner Sr.

The Harrison County Sheriff's Office is in charge of the investigation. Anyone with information should call 865-7092.

Overall costs of the project would be $875,800. The county's share of that amount would be $188,950. Grandison said he foresaw no problems in obtaining funding.

The project would prevent erosion from beneath the beaches, which mainly causes depressions along Beach Boulevard and the seawall. It is a beach erosion prevention project, said Grandison.

Supervisors said they planned to do improvement work along Beach Boulevard and the seawall after revetment construction is completed.

Supervisors added the work would then be more feasible and last longer because erosion undermining the boulevard would be slowed with revetment installations.

Grandison said the county probably will have to do maintenance work on the revetments approximately every five years. He said the revetments should be effective for about 50 years, stemming beach erosion during that period.

The type of revetments settled on during discussions between supervisors and Grandison were selected based on a cost-benefit ratio worked out by Corps experts.

The three are termed the Hancock County, Bay St. Louis and Waveland revetments. Hancock's would be placed near Bayview Court, Bay St. Louis's from Washington to Booker streets and Waveland's at Vacation Lane.

The Hancock and Waveland construction would be what is termed a steel sheet pile wall with a concrete trench while the Bay St. Louis revetment would be constructed with riprap.

"QUOTEABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

The Hancock County Food Pantry continues to help those in the area who are hungry.

They are provided with staple food items such as canned meats, canned fruit, soups, vegetables, bread, rice, beans, flower, sugar, macaroni, etc.

The Hancock County Food Pantry is now in its seventh year of operation and is open from 9 a.m. to noon, Monday through Friday.

It is located to the rear of the Hancock County Courthouse, next to the Civil Defense office.

The telephone number is 467-2790. The Food Pantry is operated by an all-volunteer force from area churches.

To give you an idea of the effectiveness of the Food Pantry, during the month of June 1993, some 55 families were helped, while in the first half of July, 40 families received assistance.

Since the Hancock County Food Pantry has opened, 6,718 families, consisting of 20,426 people have been helped during a time of need.

I would like to personally thank each and everyone who helps with the Food Pantry. This includes volunteers who work at the facility, those who make donations of food items or cash contributions, bread collectors, and those who serve on food drives, fund raisers, etc.

The Hancock County Food Pantry is a community project, and it continues to serve the public so well because of the involvement of so many.

Keep up the good work, folks!

Don't forget the St. Paul's Seafood Festival continues through today in Pass Christian.

The festival offers all types of seafoods and other food items, in addition to live entertainment. Hours are from 11 a.m. until 11 p.m.

I realize there may be some hunters-to-be in the area who are looking forward to some Hunters Education courses.

Hunters Education classes are scheduled for July 27-29 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Pearlington Community Center on Highway 604.

Then again August 24-26 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Fenton Community Center.

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator Trent Lott

Reforming the Congress

Over the years, the Congress has grown, evolved and changed. For example, back in the late 1950s, the nation's 96 U.S. Senators and their staffs worked in one office building and the Capitol.

Since then, we've added only four more senators, but we've also added two senate office buildings, thousands of additional staff and a number of new committees and subcommittees.

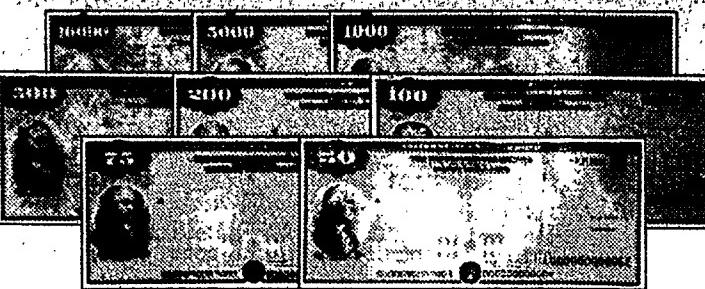

The House of Representatives has had a similar explosion of growth in staff and committees. The world has changed in those years, so Congress also needed to adapt. But instead of adapting, it really just grew. It seems that almost every time in issue gained even a small constituency, a new committee with a new staff was created. We even have a Committee on Committees.

The result has been that the number of committees that senators and representatives served on grew dramatically. And, in addition, the number of members sitting on each committee and subcommittee grew. All of this has contributed to slowing down—or even stalling—the ability of Congress to deal with many major concerns. It has also spread many members of the Senate and House so thin that many members can have two or three committee meetings at the same time.

The fact is that Congress has grown out of control, just as the bureaucracy has. And, it has resulted in a less effective and efficient system.

Over the years, Congress has attempted several reforms to restructure the institution. This year, we are trying again. A temporary committee of 12 senators and 12 representa-

Rising in the ranks

Last week a report was released by the Council of Chief State School Officers citing a slight increase from 1991 in standardized math and science test scores for eighth graders throughout the nation. Forty states participated, along with Guam and the District of Columbia.

Mississippi's ranking was forty-ninth—just above Guam and the District of Columbia.

A spokesperson for the Mississippi Superintendent of Education cited the poverty level in the state as one factor contributing to Mississippi's poor ranking. In addition, the state curriculum currently used in the classroom was cited as another problem that contributed to the low scores.

The superintendent's office did, however, assure that these scores would increase next year because of a change in the state's curriculum. While this change may have a positive effect on test scores, a spokesperson from the State Department of Education said the change must come from the strategies teachers use in the classroom.

Interestingly enough, these comments and the report were released at the same time Mississippi was beginning its fourth year of the Teacher Corps program. The program recruits liberal arts graduates nationwide to teach in rural Mississippi classrooms in exchange for alternative teacher certification and a master's degree.

Though this program has a positive impact on the state, it shows the lack of experienced teachers working in the schools

The Big Band

Fisher presents sounds of the '40s

BY LIZ HAAS

Celebrated performer Jerry Fisher's opening performance of The Big Band, sounds of the '40s, sold out within days.

The musical preview of The Big Band, a 19-piece swing band orchestra, will be Wednesday, July 21, at 9 p.m. at the Dock of the Bay in Bay St. Louis.

"Watching us play at the Dock will be like having a big band in your living room," said Fisher.

The band features selections from the Big Band sounds of Benny Goodman, Glenn Miller, Tommy Dorsey, Duke Ellington and others.

It also features female vocalists Marsha Theriot and other well known talents.

Tickets are being sold for the group's September 1 performance at the Dock of the Bay.

Fisher and longtime friend Clement Toca, conductor, conceived the idea to go back into the '40s because they felt there is always a demand for that type of music.

"We both felt there is a need for a big band on the Coast, and have been encouraged by many people to start one," said Toca.

Fisher and Toca met when the Fishers purchased the Dock of the Bay in 1976.

The musical talent combines Fisher, a former lead singer of Blood, Sweat and Tears, and lead singer of Jerry Fisher and the Music Company, and Bay St. Louis native Toca, a composer, arranger and musician with a 50-year musical career.

They have gathered professional musicians from as far as Ft. Walton Beach, Fla., to Hattiesburg, after holding auditions for the past month.

"We are now completely organized," said Toca.

Fisher said, "We created something we think everyone's going to enjoy—young and old."

Toca said, "We are an authentic band of the '40s. The band will wear tuxedos of the '40s, the girl performers will wear tight dresses like the singers in those days did and the girls trio will wear cocktail dress styles of the '40s."

Fisher said a lot of dignitaries and VIPs from the casinos will be at the preview party.

"It's really neat that people are interested in it and fired up, but not any more fired up than we are," he said.

Fisher said, "I think it's great that we can finally do something like this on the Gulf Coast. The desire was there, but the tools to do it with weren't available."

He said the casinos made a big step in expanding music on the Coast.

"It got to be that there was no place for musicians to play on the Coast," he said.

Fisher said, "We plan to do major shows at the casinos. Say if someone like Frank Sinatra came to perform at a casino, we could be the band to play for him."

The band's next performance will be August 8, closing the Beach Front Festival.

The band will perform August 11 at Wednesday Night Legends at Casino Magic, legendary music of the '40s featuring The Big Band.

Fisher said in addition, the group plans to do special shows at conventions and carnival balls and a special gig once a month at the Dock of the Bay.

He said, "We look for the band to be the hottest thing on the Coast within two to three months."

"We have a lot of future plans, and it is my ambition to put Jerry in front of the Jackson symphony," said Toca.

He said, "Jerry will be unique in himself. I have tried to lift him out of the '90s and put him in the '40s."

Toca's wife, Elizabeth, does the writing for the female vocalists, and he does the scoring for everything.

Jerry Fisher and the Music Company will still be the house band at the Dock of the Bay.

The group recently released the album, "In An' Outta Da Blues," a collection of R & B selections.

Fisher said they plan to do some shows where the Music Company opens for the Big Band and vice versa.

"We have two complete acts we can combine for one show," he said.

Toca said, "We think it's going to be an exciting musical experience for both listener and player."

To reserve tickets for the September performance, call the Dock of the Bay at 467-9940 or visit the downtown Bay St. Louis business located at 119 North Beach Blvd.

County."

"We are not going to request any bond issues or tax exemptions and will be installing our own sewer treatment plant," said Jackson.

She said, "All we ask of you is your support through a resolution to the Gaming Commission."

MISS TEEN USA

Hancock County Tourism and Gaming Association vice president Hester Plauche requested the board of supervisors contribute $2,500 of the $5,000 the commission has agreed to contribute toward the production of the 1993 Miss Teen USA pageant.

The pageant will be televised nationally and world-wide in August from the Coast Coliseum in Biloxi.

Buz Olsen, Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission executive director, told the supervisors the commission would commit $1,250 of the supervisors share.

The board told Plauche it would have to check the budget to determine if funds were available to make a donation.

The board approved:

—recommendation by A.L. Franklin, Hancock County Parks Commission Director, to accept the low quote from Northshore Marine of Slidell, La., for five paddle wheel boats for a total of $4,990;

—recommendation by Franklin for a treatment plant costing $2,175 at Kiln ball field;

—recommendations by Olsen from the Port and Harbor Commission;

—the payroll.

The board recessed to a July 19, 9 a.m. hearing.

Caregivers support group meets at Methodist Church

Two new Mississippi Gulf Coast support groups will be available for caregivers of people with Alzheimer's disease and related disorders beginning this summer. The groups are recommended to help caregivers prepare for the demanding experience of providing care to a person who has a memory impairment.

The groups are appropriate for friends or relatives who are dealing with any aspect of caregiving, whether for a person who is suspected of having an illness or who has been diagnosed.

Issues of interest to people who supervise patients at home, in a residential care setting, or in a remote location are discussed, according to Linda Robinson, RNC who leads the existing support group which meets at Memorial Hospital at Gulfport.

That group has met continuously for nine years and predates the charter of the local Alzheimer's Association affiliate, which grew from the informal meeting of caregivers. The Memorial Hospital group will continue to meet at 6 p.m. on the third Monday of each month.

A daytime group will meet at Seashore Manor in Biloxi at 10 a.m. on the first Wednesday of each month.

The Main Street United Methodist Church of Bay St. Louis fellowship hall will be the location of a third support group, to meet on the final Thursday of each month at 6 p.m.

"The groups are not helpful just to caregivers dealing with Alzheimer's disease, but would be useful for those with loved ones with Parkinson's, multi-infarct dementia (caused by multiple strokes) or any of the other dementing diseases.

Alzheimer's disease is one type of dementing illness, but the other types may also produce changes in personality, mood and behavior," according to Robinson.

Caregivers are encouraged to contact the chapter office at 867-6251 for information. All chapter-affiliated support groups are free and open to the public.

Waveland teacher wins top Quarter horse honors

BY DAVID A. FARRELL
Palomino Quarter horses owned by a Waveland teacher and horse enthusiast, Ray Glenn, continue to be among the best performing in the nation.

Two of his horses are tied for first nationally in the same event.

Rankings recently released by Palomino Horses, the national publication of the Palomino Horse Breeders of America, places three of Glenn's horses in top rankings.

Glenn trains his horses on his small ranch south of Saucier community.

Win Bars Gold Streak, a six-year-old Palomino mare, was ranked No. 1 nationally in amateur pole bending, second in senior pole bending, eighth in senior barrel racing and tied for first in amateur barrel racing with another Glenn horse, Poco Golden Remedy.

Poco Golden Remedy, a seven-year-old mare, was ranked second in amateur pole bending and tied for first in amateur barrel racing with Win Bars Gold Streak.

Competition allows entry of two horses into a single event.

Glenn, who has been riding since he was a small child, personally rides each of his horses during competition. He won his first riding ribbon in 1963.

Glenn's third horse, Patriot Colors, a two-year-old mare, is tied for first in junior pole bending and barrel racing with a San Antonio, Tex., horse, Mr. Topaz Idle.

And Patriot Colors is also tied for second nationally with Poco Golden Remedy in amateur pole bending. Glenn has three horses that are either first or tied for first place nationally. Glenn, besides belonging to the national Palomino association, also belongs to the Mississippi association. Points are accumulated throughout the year during competitions to determine the rankings.

Angry Housewives

Gulfport Little Theatre will present the musical comedy "Angry Housewives" for five performances, July 23 and 24 at 8 p.m., July 25 at 2 p.m., then continuing July 30 and 31 at 8 p.m.

Reservations are suggested by calling the box office at 864-7983. Tickets are $9 for adults and $6 for students.

Bored with their everyday workday lives and kept in insignificance by their husbands, these really are four angry housewives. They try a number of things in search of personal fulfillment, but nothing strikes a chord until one of them strikes a chord on her guitar and gets the idea that, well, why don't they form a punk-rock group and enter the upcoming talent show?

Gulfport Little Theatre is located off Pass Road behind Lyles Carpets. This show is for mature audiences only. For details, call the box office at 864-7983.

NOMA opening

The anticipated public opening of the New Orleans Museum of Art's new third floor galleries in the Doris Zemurray Stone Wing, which will house some of the best examples of non-Western art in the world, is today, July 18.

The opening of the new third level, which will contain African, Oceanic, Pre-Columbian, Native American and Asian art, marks the final phase of NOMA's $23 million expansion and renovation, a project that has gained national stature and recognition for the museum.

Visitors to the third floor will enter a world inhabited by a 14-century Aztec goddess, African chieftains, Samurai warriors and the delicate, demure images that grace Japanese scroll and screen paintings. Here is the crafted stone, gold and jade of ancient peoples, lost kingdoms and forgotten gods.

Highlights of the galleries include rare carvings of a Yoruba palace veranda post and female Ibeji, or twin figures, by the greatest of Africa's known master carvers Olowe of Ise; a Hawaiian temple figure collected on Captain Cook's third voyage to the Hawaiian Islands in 1779; and the ritual Kachina dolls of the Pueblo people of the Southwestern United States.

Housed in newly built, state-of-the-art galleries, many of the third-floor collections rank among the best in the United States.

For information call 504-488-2631.

Arboretum offers brochure identifying native trees

The Crosby Arboretum has recently developed a brochure identifying the best 40 native trees to use for street and garden plantings along the Gulf Coast. These trees were chosen for their ability to thrive in just about any urban landscape condition, from compacted soils to parking lots.

Many of the trees identified in the brochure are already familiar features of Southern landscapes, such as live oak and Southern magnolia.

However, there are many native species that are not often seen but have real garden potential, such as indigo bush (Amorpha fruticosa Linnaeus) that has showy spring lavender flower spikes with yellow stamens, or swamp dogwood (Cornus stricta Lamarck), that is a good substitute for the hard-to-grow flowering dogwood.

The trees listed in the brochure were chosen not only for their ability to grow just about anywhere, but each was assessed for their ornamental qualities, wildlife value, and ease of culture and maintenance.

Robert Brzuszek, curator of Pinecote at the Crosby Arboretum, developed the brochure with assistance from two landscape architects, John Mayrone from Covington, La., and Robert Poore from Flora, Miss. and a wildlife specialist Bill Tomlinson from Vicksburg, Miss.

Brzuszek said, "We've developed a list of trees that any homeowner or landscape professional along the Gulf Coast can plant with a degree of confidence. So many plants being sold in nurseries today require special care for them to live. These hardy trees are survivors that should be used much more."

In addition to listing the trees, the brochure has a short description of the plants which lists their maximum size, native habitats and associated plants, flower and fruit characteristics, environmental preferences, wildlife value, and landscape use.

The brochure was developed with a grant from the America the Beautiful program of the Mississippi Forestry Commission.

Each of the trees cited in the brochure are identified along the pathways at Pinecote, the Interpretive Center of the Crosby Arboretum, located in Picayune.

Brochures are available for a $1.50 shipping and handling fee and may be obtained by writing to: The Crosby Arboretum, P.O. Box 190, Picayune, MS 39466 or by calling (601) 799-2311.

Time arrives for 1993 fall garden planting

By Dr. Milo Burnham

Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

Spring planted vegetables have produced or are producing. Flowering bedding plants have filled in the spaces between plants covering the ground with green or colorful leaves and flowers.

Most gardeners now have decided they've over-done the gardening bit and wish they'd shown more restraint when planting fever was high and outside temperatures were a lot able to enjoy this year.

If you've just moved into a new home and there is a sunny location to garden, go to it. Sure, there are some vegetables you won't be able to grow at this late date, but whether or not to garden doesn't depend on these vegetables.

It is time to set out eggplant, tomato and pepper for a fall crop. Although the recommended planting time for southern peas and bush-type butter beans is past, if gardeners want to harvest a good crop before the weather turns cold, I'd say go ahead and plant.

Around the first of August is the time to begin planting seed of cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower, rutabagas and bush types of snap beans.

Early August is also the time to plant Chinese cabbage, cucumbers, yellow squash and zucchini squash.

Late August and early September are the times to look for transplants of broccoli, cabbage and cauliflower. Whether or not you'll be able to pick watermelons and muskmelons from seeds planted in mid-July is questionable. If you have the space and are willing to risk not harvesting, go ahead and plant the seeds.

One trick for mid-summer and hot weather planting is to have the soil moist before you plant the seeds so it won't be necessary to water before the seeds germinate.

Watering soils high in silt and clay and low in organic matter generally results in a hard crust that prevents young and tender seedlings from emerging from the soil.

Frustrated gardeners who don't have a place to garden may consider container gardening. Containers for gardening can be clay or plastic pots, wooden tubs or even a plastic bag of top or potting soil.

Lay bags of potting soil flat, and punch holes in the top for planting and around the lower sides for drainage.

When you water, use a water soluble fertilizer and water enough at each watering to have some water run out of the drainage holes.

You can grow tomatoes, peppers and eggplant in bags as well as most flowers. It may be easier to have flower transplants to set in the bags of soil.

With care in planting, you should be able to plant seed of zinnias, cosmos and marigolds if you want flowers. Squash and cucumber seeds can be planted in the bags of soil with little or no trouble.

When growing in containers with a limited soil capacity, check the plants daily or several times a day for needed water. Plants in containers may wilt daily unless an effort is made to shade the containers to prevent the soil and roots from getting hot.

Light-colored containers reflecting light and heat probably won't present as much of a problem as dark containers.

There's still plenty of time for good gardening ahead. Go to it!

cooler in April and May. Though interest may be on the wane, the opportunity for plenty of gardening is ahead of us. There is still an opportunity to have both flowers and veget-

NRL scientists study ancient ocean floor

Scientists from the Naval Research Laboratory Stennis Space Center (NRL SSC) are studying a 2- to 40-million-year-old area of ocean floor during the month of July to establish a fundamental understanding of acoustic reverberation.

This data, collected in an area north of the Kane Fracture Zone and west of the mid-Atlantic ridge, will be used by the Navy to develop and validate realistic computer models.

These models will predict reverberation in the seafloor areas, and then remove 'reverberation noise' from shipboard and submarine detection systems.

This area, designated as a natural reverberation site because of steep rock inclines and deep sub-surface structures, was selected in the 1980s by a consortium of universities and Navy labs to study reverberation at low frequencies and low grazing angles.

The unusual mountain ranges and sediment ponds are very suitable for reverberation studies because of exposed hard rocks and deep subsurface rock.

Researchers will collect data with multichannel towed systems aboard the Navy's research vessel Cory Chouest, the Supreme Allied Commander Atlantic Undersea Research Center's (SACLANT) research vessel Alliance, NRL's Deep Towed Acoustics/Geophysics System, and with bottom-moored vertical arrays at selected sites.

NRL scientists participating in the Office of Naval Research funded Acoustic Reverberation Special Research Project will be joined by researchers from NRL Washington, D.C., the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Scripps Institute of Oceanography, Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute, Rice University, University of Hawaii and SACLANT Center, La Spezia, Italy.

CONSUMER UPDATENational Association of Investors Corporation sponsors local class

By Janet K. Lukens
Area Consumer Money Management Specialist

The National Association of Investors Corporation (NAIC) is a not-for-profit corporation with the theme of learn-by-doing investing.

It has the two-fold purpose of introducing individuals to business ness ownership and enabling those individuals to become successful lifetime investors. I have watched the number of local NAIC investment clubs grow in recent years and have assisted two new clubs in organizing.

For those interested in the educational opportunities offered by NAIC, a four-week stock evaluation class is scheduled on the Coast this fall.

NAIC principles emphasize long-term investment objectives. There are four basic principles to which all NAIC study materials and investment recommendations are geared.

Principle one: Invest regularly. Stock market fluctuations and economic cycles are inevitable. However, NAIC's emphasis on a long-term strategy encourages regular investing rather than market timing.

NAIC investors seek to minimize market risk by purchasing shares of companies they intend to hold as long as the corporate issuers are operating successfully.

NAIC clubs may invest monthly, quarterly or at some other designated interval depending upon investment dollars and the group preference.

Principle two: Reinvest all earnings. Profits are maximized through compounding by putting money earned back into the market. NAIC's low-cost investment plan allows for automatic reinvestment of dividends in participating companies.

Principle three: Invest in growth companies. Companies are chosen which have sales and earnings advancing more rapidly than the gross domestic product. Companies expected to double in five years are sought.

Principle four: Diversity to reduce risk. Since the future cannot be predicted with certainty, diversification is used to minimize risk in any one company or industry. With diversification, an occasional mistake is not disastrous.

The primary study tool used by NAIC is the Stock Selection Guide. The guide uses charts, historical earnings, and selected ratios to make predictions about future price potential and a "buy" and "sell" range.

The four-week NAIC course will teach procedures for using the Stock Selection Guide. The class is offered through Community Education in Gulfport.

It will be held Wednesdays from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. beginning Sept. 15. The instructor is Dick Strasser, director of the Greater New Orleans Council of NAIC.

For more information and registration call the Community Education Program at 896-8978 or 896-8985.
